WINES FROM ALONG THE ANDES

Our story

Alandes, (word combination of "Wines from Along the Andes") is one of Karim Mussi's projects, who along with his partners, found a beautiful old winery, to develop new brands and styles without the restrictions of producing wines from grapes of/from a single terroir.

Every label of Alandes is driven by an individual concept, that represents absolute freedom, a "Laize Faire" winemaking philosophy that is spread in an extensive territory without boundaries.

Our Vineyards

Our wines come from a variety of locations within Argentina, along the Andes, to offer wines that represent absolute freedom. From Salta in the north, to vineyards located in Valle de Uco, Mendoza.

Alandes is a concept where the oenological territory exceeds the geographical limits covering all of the Andes range.

- The inside of the bottle always needs to be bigger than the speech.
- Alandes considers the vast Andean region for the creation of wines not just for the great agronomical conditions but also for the history and shared tradition between towns.
- We look for connecting the winemaking philosophies that might look different but they belong in the same geological and cultural family.
- A concept without political boundaries where the latitudes and longitudes turn the Andes range into a unique country.

ARGENTINA

The Paradox Wines

The first Paradox wine was the red blend, the idea was to be as disruptive, but classical as possible; using grapes from different regions and vintages to produce something incredible.

Karim decided to make a traditional Bordeaux blend because he wanted to highlight the French identity rooted in Mendoza that started in the mid-19th century, thanks to the initiatives of president Domingo Sarmiento of inviting Michel Pouget and other French tutors to teach in Argentina.

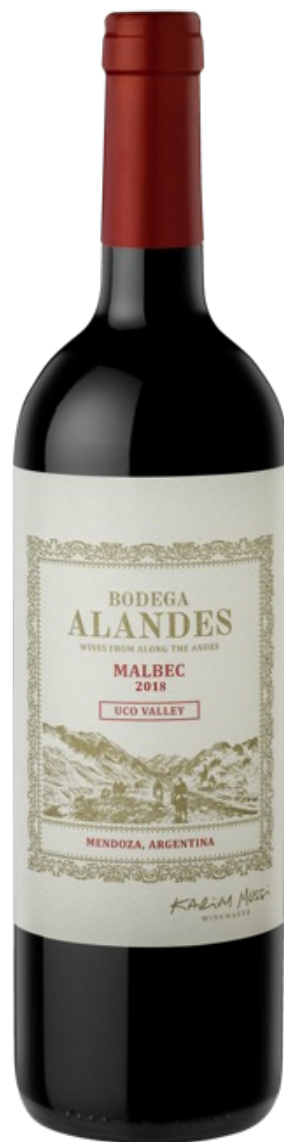

Even though five grape varieties were used to make this wine, part of the “paradox” behind it, is that the best blend (which is blind tasted) corresponds to the most balanced one: the one that contains 20% of each grape.

The concept of producing a non-vintage wine is based on the possibility of choosing the best batches of each grape variety with no regard to the year of harvest.
