Our story

Viñalba is an exciting range of wines which showcases the depth and elegance that Argentina can offer.

It encompasses an eclectic range of grape varieties and wines from both Mendoza and Patagonia. Launched in 2008, it has won an abundance of medals, including numerous trophies in the industry's top competitions and is sold around the world.

Made by leading winemaking Hervé Joyaux Fabre, Viñalba offers beautifully crafted wines which combine purity of fruit with elegance and complexity.

Our vineyards

MENDOZA - Valle de Uco

- Valle de Uco is one of the most exciting regions of Mendoza, with the highest altitude vineyards (1,700m above sea level) and an impressive terroir.
- A relatively new wine-making region with vineyards being planted from 1980s onwards.
- Fast becoming an important, prestigious and highly sought after area.
- The altitude of Gualtallary provides wide temperature ranges and cooling breezes during the ripening period, extending the cycle, creating wines with character and personality.

PATAGONIA - Río Negro

- Patagonia is a region covering the southernmost portion of the South American continent.
- Our vineyards lie between the Andes Mountains and the Atlantic Ocean in the Alto Valle of the Río Negro area (220m above sea level).
- Río Negro is the most southerly of Argentina's wine regions, lying at a latitude of 39 degrees south and has a similar climate to the Northern Rhône in France.
- The Antarctic influences keep the temperatures low but the winds prevent diseases in the vineyards.
- There are some fantastic wines produced in Patagonia and the area is fast gaining recognition as a premium wine region.
